

133-acre Dayton site certified by NNDA

A 133-acre industrial site in Dayton is the latest to be certified by Northern Nevada Development Authority.

The Lyon County property is located on the north side of US Highway 50 just east of Enterprise Way in Dayton, and is the first site to be made available through a Brownfields Coalition Assessment Cooperative Agreement with the Environmental Protection Agency.

According to NNDA, a Nevada Certified Site designation serves as a pre-qualification indicating that a property's title is clear, it possesses sufficient utilities and other infrastructure required for commercial use, is properly zoned and has adequate transportation access for distribution and logistics.

"For brownfields that have successfully completed the assessment process, EPA has granted NNDA permission to use some of its grant funds to cover the cost of reuse planning, which can help pay for certain elements of the certified site application," said Andrew Haskin, NNDA director of business development. "This will help to quickly build an inventory of needed and qualified industrial property."

The Carson City Board of Supervisors last week signed on to the same kind of brownfields grant with NNDA, a $600,000 grant to be shared with Douglas County.

This is NNDA's third certified site. The two others are a 46-acre site on Arrowhead Drive in Carson City, about half of which will be used by Reno Lumber, and a 98-acre site in Silver Springs.

CHS band fundraising to march in Chinese New Year parade in SF

Nevada Appeal staff report

The award winning Carson High School Blue Thunder Marching Band was selected to march in the 2018 Chinese New Year Parade in San Francisco on Feb. 24, but it needs some help to get there.

Band members are raising money to participate in the parade, named one of the top 10 parades in the world by International Festivals & Events Association.

The Southwest Airlines Chinese New Year Parade in San Francisco is one of the few remaining night illuminated parades in North America and the biggest parade celebrating the lunar new year outside of Asia.

More than 100 units will participate in the televised event which features floats, elaborate costumes, fireworks, and a 268-foot-long golden dragon.

This is the first time the Blue Thunder Marching Band will participate in the annual parade. In order for the band to be able to attend the prestigious event, it will need to raise $18,000.

Residents and the community can help by participating in the "Adopt-a-Band-Member" program. Each band member is required to get a minimum of four adoptions.

The cost is $25 per member, or $100 for a section.

Blarney Man bringing Celtic tunes to BAC

Nevada Appeal staff report

The Brewery Arts Center's Celtic music series will continue on Saturday with favorite Irish ballads and sing-alongs by Blarney Man.

Keith Shannon, the Blarney Man, taps into the rich Irish tradition of storytelling through song, drawing from traditional and contemporary sources to create an evening of Irish, Scottish and Celtic songs that often has the audience humming and whistling on the way home.

Shannon is currently playing extensively throughout the Midwest and Pacific Northwest. Two years ago, he entertained a near-capacity crowd in the MHJ Black Box Theater and is excited to return to the BAC.

Shannon's act gets its name from the Irish word "blarney," defined as "smooth, flattering talk; often nonsensical." He said the description perfectly suits his style of performing.

The performance will be at 7 p.m. in the BAC's

Maizie Harris Jesse Black Box Theater, 449 W. King St.

Tickets are $12 for BAC members, $15 in advance, and $20 at the door. Buy them through Brewery-Arts.org or by calling the BAC box office at 775-883-1976.

The Celtic music series presents artists monthly on the second Saturday through May. Its goal is to showcase the best in local, regional, and international Celtic music artists.

In February, the BAC will present the high-energy music of the Valerie Rose Band, a West Coast favorite featuring fiddle, flute, and guitar.

In time for St. Patrick's Day in March, the series will feature Alan Reid, founder and member of the Battlefield Band, a traditional Scottish music group. Tickets are on sale for both shows.

For information about the Blarney Man performance or the series, contact Gina Hill at 775-883-1976 or gina@breweryarts.org.
